WATCH US SHINE!

Hands folded placidly on her lap, a small blonde girl sits Indian-style amid a group of children clapping and singing "Let The Sun Shine In."

Dressed in blue tights, she remains still as the group launches into "Animal Crackers In My Soup" and moves only once to wipe her nose during "Tomorrow."

It's for young and quiet children such as 2½-year-old Heather Clarke, that Sunshine Generation, Inc. was formed six years ago.

The company, based in Layton, Utah, franchises a mail-order theater workshop for children from 3 to 15 years old.

Mount Baldy resident Vicki Slater has brought the unique form of children's theater to Upland and Rancho Cucamonga. Slater also allowed young Heather to slip past the minimum age requirement.

"Most other groups are audition groups. There's a lot more pressure involved," says Slater, 23. "We're not so much trying to make movie stars. We offer something that's not just designed for the exceptional child, but for the average child as well."

Nancy Nalder, creator of the program, said around 40 franchises are operating from Hawaii to Illinois, with additional openings planned in some eastern states.

Slater began teaching weekly classes two months ago at Upland Elementary School, 601 N. Fifth Ave., and Rancho Cucamonga Neighborhood Center, 9761 Arrow Highway. She supplements the teaching material and choreography sent from the franchise company with a sprinkling of her own material and dance steps.

Slater graduated with an elementary school teaching credential from Cal Poly Pomona in 1982 and has a background in dance and music.

However, the Sunshine Generation lessons are designed and simplified so that almost anyone with minimal experience can teach the basics of theater, jazz, tap and ballet dancing, as well as voice culture and music theory.

Patience is the one thing not included in the pre-packaged lessons.

Slater speaks slowly while teaching song lyrics to her "Singing Sunbeams," 3- to 5-year-olds at the Rancho Cucamonga Neighborhood Center.

"Bet ... your ... bottom ... dollar ... that tomorrow ... they'll be ... what? They'll be what?" she asks.

"Suuuuuuuuuuuuuuun," comes the loud response from the children dressed in multi-colored tights or blue jeans and T-shirts.

The choreography for the famed song from the production "Annie" is basically extreme hand gestures done while kneeling, although some of the children are on their stomachs or are looking toward the back of the room. One girl hums as she busily ties her shoe.

After the singing lessons come the acting lessons.

"How would you look if you got some ice cream?" asks Slater, inspiring Cheshire Cat-grins from the group.

The wide smiles droop into frowns when the youngsters are asked what they would look like if the family dog ate their favorite toy.

Slater's 6- to 8-year-old students are tagged the "Sundance Kids," while 9- to 11-year-olds are called "Solar Sounds." The group for 12- to 15-year-olds is called "Aquarius."

Nearly 50 youngsters and teens are enrolled in the $20-a-month program in Upland on Tuesdays and in Rancho Cucamonga on Wednesdays. The hour-long lessons begin at 3 p.m.

Slater says another 20 children are on waiting lists for summer programs.

All the age groups will perform once a month, with the first recital scheduled for May 31 at Upland Elementary's auditorium at 7 p.m. Admission is free.

The groups are also available free of charge for private performances.

"This is a good opportunity for kids to learn showmanship," says Slater. "We are trying to give them a strong musical background, while having a good time. □

Instructor Vicki Slater (top) teaches a "song-and-dance" routine to the 3- to 5-year-old children enrolled her Sunshine Generation workshop. Heather Clarke (above) doesn't seem to be too impressed by the singing or choreography. But her attendance is near perfect. Slater, 23, (left) of Mount Baldy Village teaches the courses for children 3 through 15 in Upland and Rancho Cucamonga.

Band director comes full circle

By Terri Tirella

Coming home to Rancho Cucamonga had special meaning to Del Bangle at a recent concert at Alta Loma High School.

Bangle is director of Castle Park High School Band in Chula Vista, and a graduate of Alta Loma High School.

Coming back to perform at Alta Loma High School recently was the first time he was able to play for his home town. "It felt like I'd really matured, that I'd had come a full circle and here was my group playing very technical, superior (music). It was a thrill of a lifetime," Bangle said.

The Castle Park wind ensemble had received a straight superior rating at the competitive festival held earlier at Alta Loma High during the day and were asked to return for a community performance that evening.

"I knew I was going to be a music teacher since I was in fourth grade. Mr. (Marion) Hunt, my music teacher, really inspired me. That's when I decided to go through and teach music."

Bangle played in Alta Loma High School Band and sang in the choir, under the direction of Don Bowers. Bowers is still at ALHS and is chairman of the music department there.

Bowers was another of Bangle's mentors. "I want to thank Don Bowers for giving me the time when I was young that I give my youngsters. If he hadn't given me time, I wouldn't have been able to learn that. It's sort of a continuing tradition you have to have to be successful."

Bangle said he has four brothers and four sisters and comes from a musical family. "Don and Diane (older siblings) were in Upland High School Band. David (another brother) was in a cappella (choir)."

"Our parents were heavily involved in church music. We got our musical roots singing in the church choir and performing (at Alta Loma Nazarene Church) ... singing and performing in quartets was a great supplement to school music."

Most of the Bangle family has graduated from college and teaching seems to be a favorite profession, but Del is the only one in music.

Being a band director takes a lot of extra time and a high degree of competitiveness, according to Bangle.

"One of the important things is to be on a personal level with students, sort of their guru," he said. Having an influence on their lives is a necessary element in building a good band program, according to Bangle.

Getting students to be dedicated is another step. "We express a lot of love for each other and a love for music," Bangle said.

On the technical side, a heavy rehearsal schedule helps to polish performances. Fund-raisers are another necessary evil, but are needed to finance the many trips.

"The key to being a successful (band director) is being able to understand kids and understand the peer pressure they're under and they're home lives," he said, "and having that special relationship, the relationship of a close friend, so they pull together, and getting kids to understand that commitment."

"Being able to develop interpersonal relationships and being able to understand (kids) is the most important quality a director must have."

Castle Park High Band has been Bangle's life for the last decade, he said. "We get requests from all over to do concerts with our jazz bands."

He said his band will compete in the National City Band Review. "We're looking for year No. 3 (for sweepstakes honors). We've been the highest scoring band (at National City's competition) in the state."

Bangle attend Upland High School before Alta Loma High opened. After graduating from ALHS, he went to Chaffey Community College and then to Pasadena College.

He started teaching junior high band and choir at Chula Vista and shortly after became the band director at Castle Park High.

Bangle went through Alta Loma School District schools before the district had a junior high school, schools went from kindergarten through eighth grade. He graduated with Alta Loma High School's first graduating class in 1967.

He lives with his wife Vivian and their 14-year-old daughter Lisa in Chula Vista. □

Housing discrimination is frustrating

By Terri Tirella

Being discriminated against in the housing market can be a frustrating and angering experience.

People wondering if they are being discriminated against and what they can do about it may find answers at a Multi-cultural Housing Symposium on May 8 in the Montclair City Council Chambers, 5111 Benito St., from 7 to 9 p.m.

The workshop is sponsored by the Inland Mediation Board in Rancho Cucamonga, an agency which helps with problem solving in housing problems between tenants and landlords, according to Betty Davidow, executive director.

"People may think discrimination is a thing of the past, but in some cases instead of being overt it is covert, not as visible but still there," she said.

Single women with children, black single women and senior citizens are among those more often discriminated against when seeking housing, according to Davidow.

Discussing how senior citizens are discriminated against will be Pola Bouton from the Office of Aging for San Bernardino County. "The high cost of available housing for seniors results in discrimination for low- and middle-income seniors ... (it's) economic discrimination," Davidow said. "It's discrimination whenever you're taking a group and plucking it away from the majority."

She said Bouton may discuss alternatives to conventional housing for seniors that might help the situation "but not get rid of the problem."

Other people addressing different housing problems will include Ray Leos, attorney for Inland County Legal Services; Mary Irving, director of community housing resource board; Lee Ephross, attorney; Mel Albiso, Department of Fair Employment and Housing; Sol Pavlosky, Department of Fair Employment and Housing; and Davidow from Inland Mediation Board.

On discrimination, the law is very clear but some parts are difficult to enforce. "Discrimination is a buzz word," Davidow said. Many people who think they are being discriminated against aren't; others who are being discriminated against may not realize it.

Housing decisions based on a person's race, religion, marital status, sex or natural origin are discriminatory, according to Davidow. A landlord who serves a 30-day eviction notice to a female tenant recently divorced because the tenant's husband is no longer around to make repairs on the home may find himself in court.

Ninety percent of the mediation board's calls are from tenants, according to Davidow. The other 10 percent are from small landlords usually asking how to take appropriate action with a tenant problem.

"When we come in, we tell give the landlord two choices: you can either go the heavy way or get what you want," she said. Dealing with the state usually means a court case and subpoenaed records.

"Instead of a win-lose situation (with the state), it will be a win-win situation," she said. "It's much better to go ahead and live with the person and let them show they are a good tenant, instead of having people (from the state office) tell you to rent to a particular tenant."

"Just because someone's skin is one color doesn't mean he won't be a good tenant," she said.

Many of the calls to the Inland Mediation Board are concerning rights and responsibilities of landlords and tenants regarding repairs.

"Withholding or deducting repairs from the rent is dangerous if tenants don't take the proper procedures," Davidow said.

For more information about the workshop or housing problems, call the Inland Mediation Board at 987-8663. The board services San Bernardino County including the cities of Rancho Cucamonga, Upland and Montclair. □

Golf tourney proceeds help send child to camp

By Katherine Keevil

Whether they're putting for a birdie or enjoying a prime rib dinner, participants in Scheu Steel Supply Co.'s fifth annual golf tournament May 11 will be helping to send West Valley children to summer camp.

The company will participate in the yearly Send-A-Kid-To-Camp Drive sponsored by the Donrey Public Foundation, Inc., by earmarking all proceeds from the event for the program, Scheu Sales Manager Gary Mitchener said.

The Daily Report, which is owned by the Donrey Media Group, collects donations on behalf of the program. The Donrey Media Group also owns the Rancho Cucamonga Times and the Upland News.

"Last spring, I was following the drive in the paper," Mitchener said. "I thought that for a community of our size, the $6,000 to $7,000 (raised) just didn't seem enough. I thought we could raise $2,000 to $3,000, which would really have a significant impact."

The tournament and dinner will be held at the El Rancho Verde Country Club in Rialto. A maximum of 144 golfers may participate, but the prime rib meal is open to more.

Check-in is between 11 a.m. and 11:30 a.m., with a shotgun start scheduled for noon. The dinner will begin at 6 p.m.

Summer school classes planned

Pre-registration begins May 19 for summer school classes tentatively offered on four Chaffey Joint Union High School district campuses.

The University of La Verne will be offering two periods of summer school — if enough students register at each site — at Alta Loma, Chaffey, Montclair and Upland high schools.

Students in grades nine through 12 will be able to attend summer school from June 25 through Aug. 3. First period is from 8 a.m. to 10:05 a.m. and second period is from 10:20 a.m. to 12:25 p.m.

One five-unit course will cost $90 for tuition, and a 10-unit course or two five-unit courses will cost $155.

Some courses will have additional lab fees. Tuition is due at the time of registration, with a $5 discount for students who sign up during pre-registration.

Pre-registration will be held at the Alta Loma, Montclair and Upland cafeterias and the Chaffey homemaking auditorium from 9 a.m. to noon May 19.

It will continue at Chaffey, Montclair and Upland from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. May 22 and at Alta Loma from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. May 23.

Students may register for any program at any school.

Five-unit courses offered will be Driver Education, Civics, Typing 1, Typing 2, Contemporary Issues, Short Story, Computer Literacy (which has an additional $7 lab fee) and Oceanography.

Ten-unit courses are biology, chemistry, introduction to social studies, physical science, pre-algebra, U.S. history, field biology ($35 lab fee) and physiology ($15 lab fee).

Regular registration will be held at all schools from 9 a.m. to noon and 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. June 14.

Late registration — with a $10 late fee — will be held from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. at all four schools.

Toastmasters celebrate 30th year

By Terri Tirella

Upland and Ontario Toastmasters in Club 1506 are celebrating their 30th anniversaries this month and plan to honor former presidents and honored club members.

The club was formed by employees of Northrop Aircraft in 1954, according to Stephen Douglas, a charter member. After the company relocated to Palmdale, the Toastmasters of Club 1506 decided to keep the organization alive.

The club has continually changed since its beginning. "Literally hundreds of men and in the last 10 years, women, have gone through the club," Douglas said.

He said the company sponsored the club to help employees develop communication skills and self-confidence. Douglas said he found the club helped him a great deal.

"There is no place one can go and get the same type of education and experience at less expense," he said. Members have a continuing program they can adapt to their needs and work at their own pace.

"Some (members) have stayed 15 years, some stay a year or two and drop out," he said.

Women were admitted to the club when International Toastmasters adopted a procedure for doing so in 1972, Douglas said. "It proved to be a good thing. It has given ladies an opportunity to get the same type of education ... it almost doubled membership in International Toastmasters."

He said women in the Upland Ontario club definitely made an impact. "It built up membership, made it (the club) stronger and provided an exchange of ideas from a different perspective, having the lady's side as well as the man's side."

He said Toastmasters is for anyone who needs or wants "a little self-improvement or good education ... I thoroughly enjoy it. I enjoy the companionship and maybe I get to help out along the way."

According to Suzanne Budovec, president for the Upland Ontario Toastmasters Club 1506, this Toastmaster group is unique. "Our club has some very experienced members in addition to new ones ... our members are diversified in careers."

She said the club is a self-development not a service organization. "It gives individual members as much growth and development as they want."

The club concentrates on bettering speaking, leadership and communication skills, Budovec said. "Toastmasters is for self-development, not something you do for your employer. It is a total participation (group) where you learn by doing."

Budovec has been a Toastmaster for 12 years. "I learn so much from people. I never leave a meeting without learning something." She said new members are welcome.

Toastmasters is the largest non-profit organization in the world, according to Budovec, numbering more than 2 million members.

"Dr. Ralph Smedly started (what is now Toastmasters) with a YMCA group of young men to learn leadership skills in a club atmosphere of fellowship and friends," she said.

Anyone 18 years or older is eligible to be a Toastmaster. Membership fees include educational materials as well as a monthly magazine stressing self motivation.

For more information about Toastmasters Club 1506 call Nancy Speaker at 946-4836 or Jon. A. Gaker at 981-1016. □

Childrens' author to speak at Chaffey College Writers' Day

T. Ernesto Bethancourt, prolific children's story and mystery writer, will be the guest speaker at Chaffey College's annual Writers' Day Saturday, May 12.

Bethancourt is well known for his Doris Fein mystery series and has had options taken out on several of his works for use on television, including "New York City Too Far From Tampa Blues," which aired on NBC in 1979 and received an Emmy nomination; "The New Americans," a pilot teleplay produced by KCET in 1981; and the recent "Dog Days of Arthur Cane," which was presented as an ABC afternoon special on two Saturdays in February.

Bethancourt is also a lyricist. Viewers of "Dog Days" may remember his original lyrics from that show's song, "The Me Inside of Me."

A native New Yorker of Puerto Rican descent, Bethancourt wrote his first novel in 1975. He explained his favorite place as a youth was the public library which was his inspiration to begin writing.

"I'd always been a voracious reader," he said. "The Brooklyn Public Library was a refuge from the street gangs. There was adventure, travel and escape to be found on the shelves."

It wasn't until he was older that he began to write and his very first effort was published and praised by critics. He has been writing ever since.

Joining Bethancourt as workshop speakers at the Writers' Day will be children's author, Dana Brookins; science fiction Barbara Hambly; Harcourt Brace Jovanovich editor, John Woods; agent Nancy Bethancourt; and journalist Rita Robinson.

Writers' Day will begin at 9 a.m. and end at 4 p.m. Awards for winning entries in five categories — short fiction, magazine article, essay, children's literature and poetry — will be presented during the afternoon.

Participants are encouraged to bring sack lunches or plan to eat at restaurants. Admission is free.

For more information or reserved seating, call the college at 987-1737, 822-4484 or 735-0242, extension 461.

Golf tournament raises camp funding

Cost is $45 for both, and $17 for the dinner only. Those wishing to participate may call Michener or tournament hostess Melody Houle at 982-1325.

Golfers can play either handicap or Calloway. Trophies will be awarded to first, second and third place winners in the handicap flight, and to the top three men and top three women playing Calloway. There will be closest-to-the-pin and longest drive contests.

The awards ceremony will be held at the dinner along with a raffle of items such as color televisions.

Scheu Steel Supply held the first tournament in celebration of its 25th anniversary. For the first four years, proceeds went to San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland.

Michener said brothers Leland and Allyn Scheu, who own both the supply company in Rancho Cucamonga and Scheu Products Co. orchard heaters in Upland, are strong supporters of the benefit.

Jim Dimmitt, general manager of The Daily Report, said he was "delighted" with the company's decision to donate the proceeds.

"This will be a big boost for the program," Dimmitt said. "We're very pleased Scheu Steel Supply chose Send-A-Kid-To-Camp as this year's recipient. It could mean a memorable camping experience for more than 30 youngsters."

The goal is to raise $8,000 to send 90 boys and girls to the one-week camp at the Salvation Army's Camp Gilmore in the Santa Monica Mountains. Cost is $90 per child.

The Army will choose the children, who must be between ages 7 and 12, to participate. Children whose families have economic hardship can qualify, along with those who have social, physical or emotional disturbances.

The fund-raising drive for this year's Send-A-Kid-To-Camp, which will be the ninth annual began Sunday.

Last year, 75 local children were able to attend camp because of the $6,000 raised.

A Step B

Those who've cast a longing eye at Rancho Cucamonga historical buildings and sighed, "I'd love to see what they look like inside," will have a chance to do just that Sunday.

Three local historical groups will hold their first Historic Landmark Tour from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., offering a look at the past in Alta Loma, Etiwanda and Cucamonga.

Ten homes, eight of them still lived in, and two churches will be on the tour sponsored by the city's Historic Preservation Commission, Casa de Rancho Cucamonga Historical Society and Etiwanda Historical Society.

Most of the dozen buildings will be open for touring, but two homes can be viewed only from the exterior.

Maxine Strane, who was a prime mover in saving the 124-year-old Casa de Rancho Cucamonga from destruction, said she and several other members of the city group attended a historic preservation conference a year ago and concluded, "We really have enough old buildings in our area for a tour."

The other two groups agreed, and the tour was born. Proceeds will go to all three organizations.

Casa de Rancho Cucamonga, also called the Rains House, is the oldest edifice. It was built by John and Dona Merced Rains, once the owners of the 13,000-acre Rancho Cucamonga.

Named a satellite of the San Bernardino County Museum after its purchase by the county in 1971, the home was placed on the National Register of Historic Places two years later.

Its 35 docents are called Las Guías (the guides). The society itself has almost 250 members.

Another well-known Cucamonga residence is also on the tour.

The Christmas House, so called because of its red and green windows and the holiday parties that once were held there, is undergoing major restoration but will be open to the public.

The 14-room Queen Anne Home, newly-painted in blue with white trim, was built in 1904. Its owners are planning to make it the city's first bed and breakfast inn.

Four years after the Christmas House was built, the Emery House was constructed nearby.

The spacious white house, complemented by flower beds in both back and front, was built in the Classical Revival style, and may have been a Sears, Roebuck and Co. "mail-order house."

Much attention has been paid to making the sunlit interior similar to what it was in the first decade of the century, with the help of a 1908 Sears catalog.

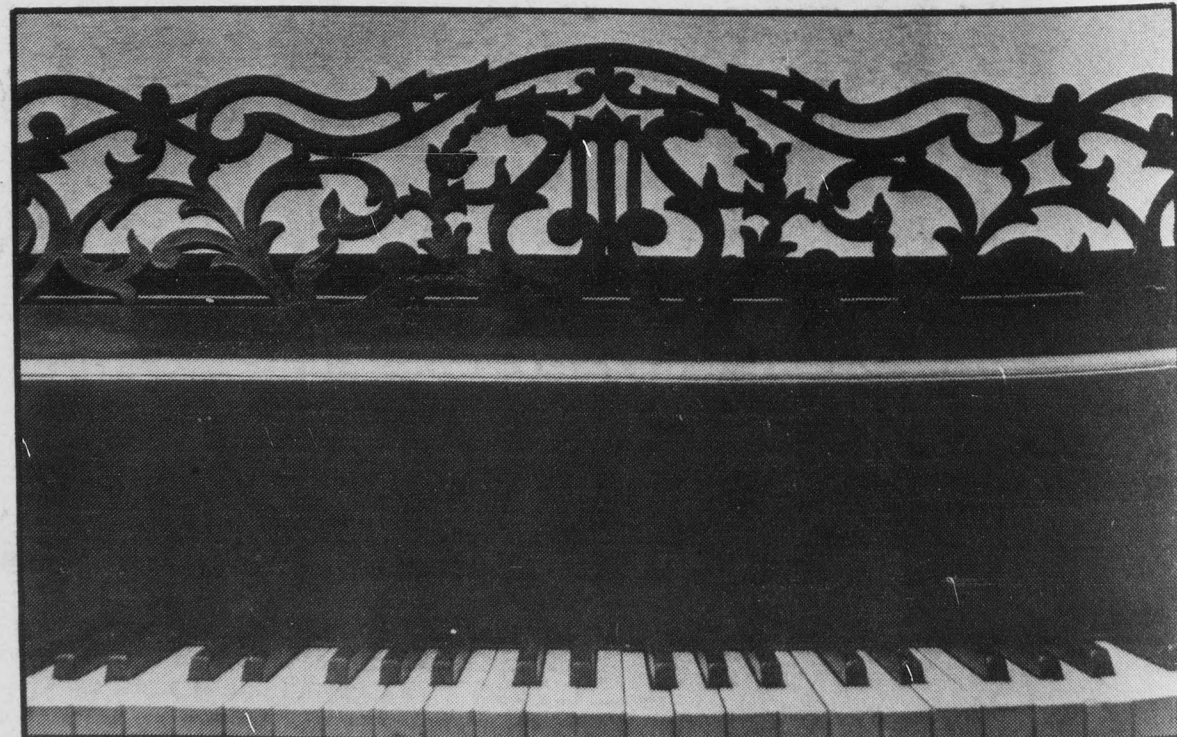

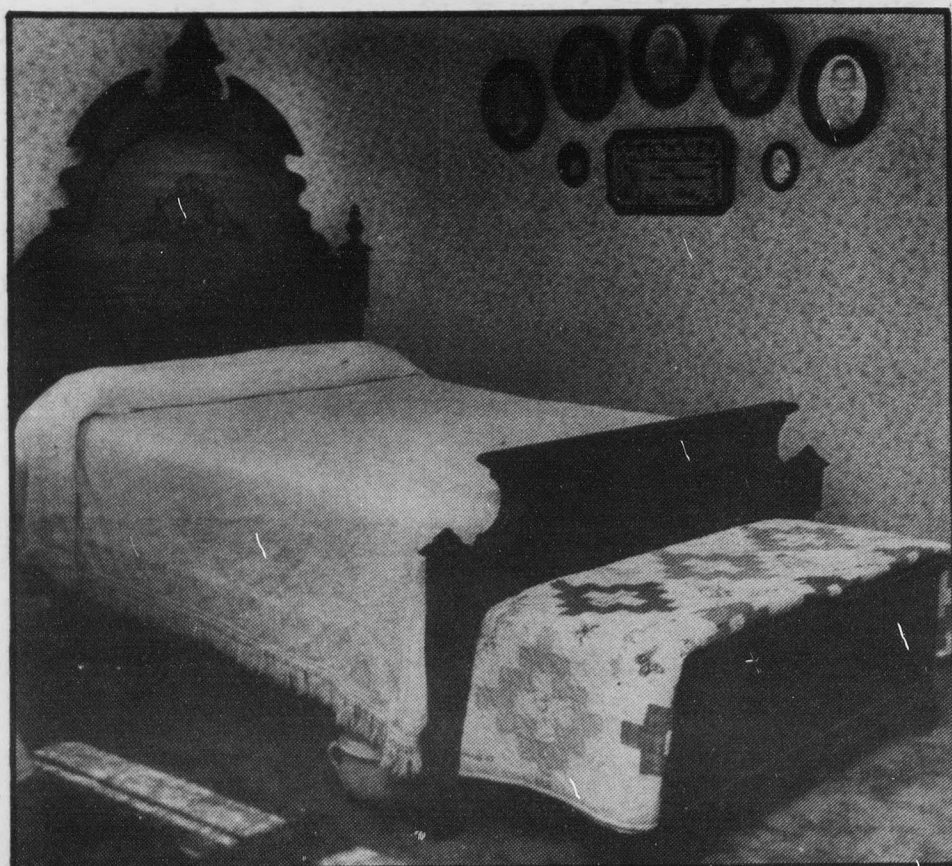

Even older than the home is an 1836 mantel purchased by the present owners in Kentucky.

A residence of the same era, with a turret and porch on two sides, is part of the day's tour. The Albert House, built in 1906, has cherry wood throughout the interior.

The home will not be open for the tour, but visitors who view the exterior can receive information at the front porch.

The oft-recognized Old Stone Church has a history dating back almost one century. The first established church in Cucamonga, it was organized in 1885.

Local cement contractor Henry Klusman supervised construction, which required 337 wagon loads of stone brought from the foothills. The supporters. There are seven unusual fireplaces at the Christmas House. Each has mantels of a different wood, and is decorated with multi-colored tiles (top right). The Christmas House is noted for its beautiful stained glass (right).

Methodist church was dedicated June 6, 1909.

In Alta Loma, the Ledig House can be visited.

Louis Michael Ledig and his wife Elizabeth, French immigrants who settled in the United States, followed one of their eight children from Illinois to Alta Loma, then called Ioamosa. They built their home in 1895, living in it until 1930 when it was sold and moved to its present location.

Other immigrants settling in Alta Loma were members of the Cherbak family, who came from Russia. Newspaper publisher A.P. Cherbak (Stcherbakoff) migrated with his wife and six sons to Alta Loma in 1898.

He returned to Russia and was not allowed to leave the country again. His sons built the 16-room stone Cherbak home for their mother in 1913.

Hidden behind large trees in Etiwanda is the comfortable, wood-themed Mueller Home. The magnolia trees planted in 1902 on the property became well-known by the Hollywood movie studios, which traveled to the house to film their branches.

The house was built in 1913-14 and includes a music room and sleeping porch. Leaded glass bookshelves are located on either side of the fireplace. The glass is used again for a china cabinet in the dining room.

Another Etiwanda home on the tour was built by an engineer who had studied architecture under Bernard Maybeck. Carr Jones, whose early houses were of the Berkeley-Craftsman style, designed the Hippard Ranch for a relative of the Rev. S.M. Hippard, an Ohio minister who was given 20 acres of vineyards by two families in his congregation.

The home was designed for maximum energy efficiency as well as self-sufficiency. Its walls are of field stone, gathered from the washes east and west of Etiwanda. The roof structure is made of cypress logs cut from the original windbreak on the property.

The charming white-washed Etiwanda Congregational Church can also be seen. Organized in 1883, the Methodist congregation built the church almost two decades later, along with a parsonage and barn.

The original stamped tin ceiling remains.

A tree-hidden home and the old Etiwanda Dairy milk house are located nearby. The house, built in 1888, has stone walls more than 18 inches thick, but they have been plastered with cement and scored to look like block.

The dairy was founded in the 1920s by J.B. Ross, who delivered milk and newspapers to residents for several decades. A visit to both the milkhouse and house will be offered.

Last of the 12 buildings on the tour, but available only for exterior viewing, is the Chaffey-Garcia House, which the Etiwanda Historical Society has earmarked for restoration. The home was built by a retired sea captain, Joseph S. Garcia, in 1874.

Almost seven years later, William and George Chaffey Jr. met with Garcia and agreed to buy the home and 560 acres of land. The community of Etiwanda thus was born.

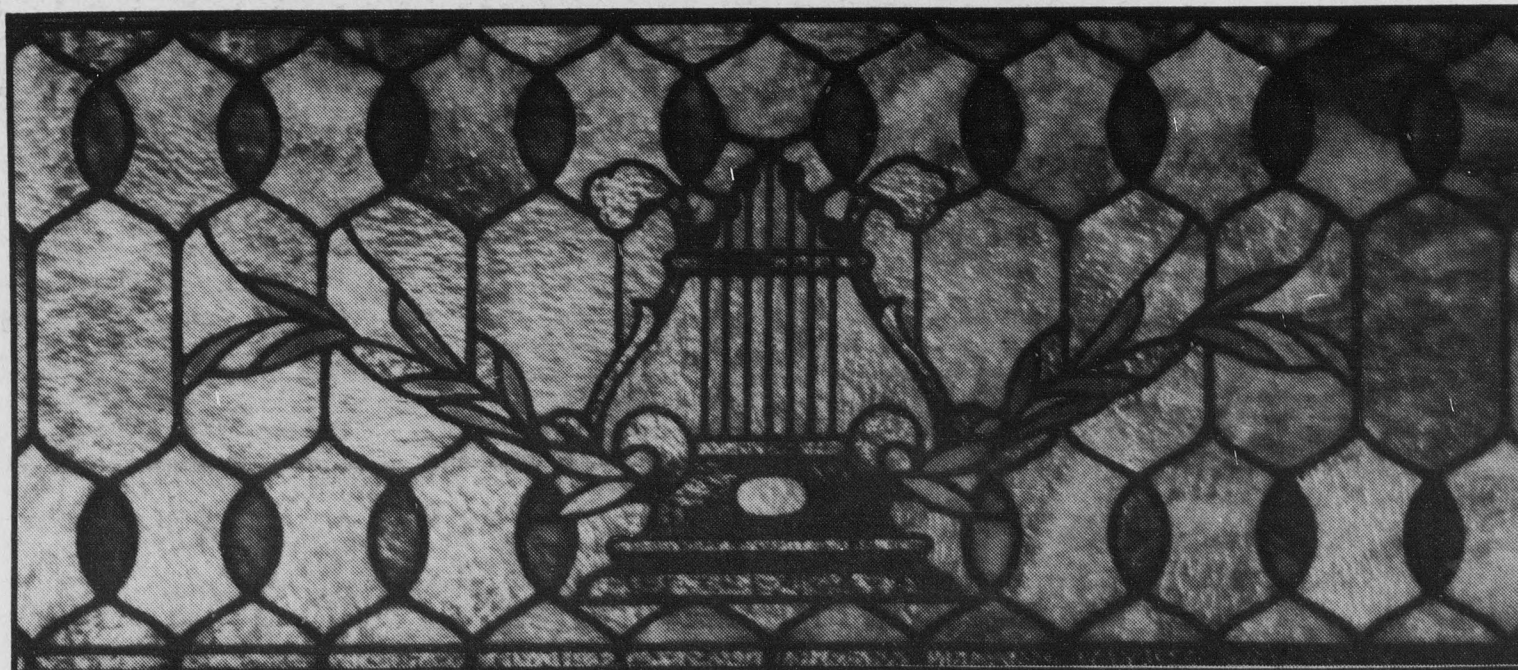

The Chaffey-Garcia House was the site of the first electric light in Southern California in 1882. Earlier that year, it was also the reported site of the first long distance telephone call in the world.

Pre-sale tickets for the Historic Landmark Tour can be purchased for $7.50 by calling the Casa de Rancho Cucamonga at 989-4970. They can be picked up Sunday at the house, located at the corner of Vineyard Avenue at Hemlock Street.

Tickets are $9 on the day of the tour. They can be purchased at the Casa or at the future site of the Chaffey-Garcia House, 7136 Etiwanda Ave.

A Mexican lunch will be offered on the Casa grounds for $2.50 beginning at 10 a.m.

More information can be obtained by calling the Casa de Rancho Cucamonga. □

Get to know your bicycle before you decide to buy it

This is Part I in a five-part series dealing with bicycle touring in America. According to the Bicycle Travel Association, Californians are by far the most active in this burgeoning mode of seeing the world.

PURCHASING A BICYCLE

Bicycling, a sport second only to swimming in popularity in the United States, motivates hundreds of thousands of adults to buy bicycles each year. Yet, many of those bicycles are purchased with adequate forehand knowledge.

The bicycle is a simple machine, but advances in metallurgy and design have resulted in a dazzling array of choices. The fierce competition among bicycle manufacturers can mean a real bargain for those who know what they need in a bicycle.

In considering your bicycle purchase, don't focus your attention on brand names. If you do your homework in selecting the right bike shop, the quality and value of the bicycle will take care of itself. Name brands need not play a significant role in your choice of components, either. Well-built bicycles in the 25-30 pound range utilize a variety of alloy components, and one is generally as good as the next.

The first step in purchasing a bicycle is to choose a bicycle shop, preferably a shop with a reputation for professionalism. The bike shop will have a vested interest in your satisfaction because they count on your return business for accessory and repair sales. This is not necessarily the case when you buy a bicycle from a supplier such as a chain store outlet.

Once you have selected the shop you will patronize, don't go until you have given some thought to the type of riding you will be doing and until you have some basic bicycle knowledge. It's important that you buy a bicycle suited to your riding interests. It is far too easy to buy too much or too little bicycle.

BIKECENTENNIAL™

Will you ride every day? How far will you ride, around the block or around the country? Do you want to go fast and light or will you be carrying a load for

Booklets aid byte buyers

It's a little like shopping in a foreign country where you don't know the language and you're not really sure what you want to buy. More than likely you'll wind up very confused.

Walking into a computer store when you don't know a baud from a modem or what you would do with 48 kilobytes sitting on your kitchen table can be hazardous to your pocketbook. It's smart to learn the language and decide what you want a home computer to do before you put down your money.

The Consumer Electronic Group of the Electronic Industries Association, in cooperation with the United States Office of Consumer Affairs, has prepared a buyer's primer on home computers. It addresses three basic questions: What can computers do? What kind should you buy? How much will you pay? The 52-page booklet helps you speak the special computer jargon by providing plain English definitions for over 100 "computerese" terms. You can get your copy of How To Buy a Home Computer by sending 50 cents to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 419M, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Before you run out and make a big investment, the booklet advises you to decide just what it is you want a computer to do. Do you need help in organizing files, writing letters, figuring taxes, learning another foreign language besides computerese? Are you going to be setting up your own business? Do you need to create mailing lists or charts and graphs? Are you going to be doing statistical or mathematical functions? Or is the main goal to make your kids computer literate while they play games?

Then decide how much you want to spend. Consider the cost of the basic computer (the "hardware"), then add the cost of peripherals such as a printer and disk drives. "Software" programs (instructions that tell the computer what to do) add extra cost.

When you go to shop for a model, bring a computer task with you, preferably something you plan to do daily, and ask the salesperson to let you put it into the camping trips? Define your interests as narrowly as possible before you visit the shop.

Choose your new bike with care

Based on your level of interest, it's a good idea to have a price range in mind. Realistically, you can expect well-designed, lightweight bicycles to start at $350. The top end is virtually limitless, but beyond $700-$800, you begin to pay for some esoteric advantages.

stretch a tape measure from the center of the front axle to the center of the rear dropout (the slot in which the wheel is held). The touring frame typically has a 41-inch or longer wheelbase, compared to a 39-inch or slightly shorter wheelbase for a racing bicycle. Most of the middle-range production bicycles are a compromise of these two wheelbase lengths, producing a frame configuration known as "sport touring."

One more easy measurement

Production bicycles are typically available in four sizes: 19½", 21", and 25". This measurement refers to the distance from the center of the bolt holding on the pedal arms (cranks) to the top of the frame's seat tube.

First time bicycle buyers often enter the shop asking for a certain sized bike before they have straddled a single top tube. There are several methods for properly sizing a rider on a bicycle and many opinions as to the ideal method. Here's a general rule: wearing the shoes you'll be riding in, you should be able to straddle the top tube and have one to two inches of clearance between the top tube and your crotch. Another general sizing guide is to subtract ten inches from your inseam to arrive at your frame size.

While all of the measurements on a bicycle frame are significant, many are beyond the concern of the casual cyclist. However, the wheelbase measurement is one that every bicycle buyer should be concerned with, as it largely determines the "ride" of the bicycle.

Generally speaking, a longer wheelbase will provide a more resilient ride; a shorter wheelbase will provide a more responsive ride. If you plan on light recreational riding or touring, go for the softer, more comfortable ride offered by the long wheelbase.

To measure the wheelbase, you can make is for toeclip overlap. (The toeclip is a metal stirrup which fits onto the front of each pedal. Together with a strap the toeclip secures your foot in the proper riding position and stabilizes it for efficient application of force to the pedals. If the bicycle you're looking at doesn't have toeclips on it, get them.)

To test for toeclip overlap, move the crankarm so that it is parallel to the ground with the pedal facing forwards. Lift the pedal into riding position and swing the front wheel toward the toeclip. This test will show you if the front wheel will collide with the toeclip, just as it will if you turn sharply while riding, which can cause a nasty spill. If the toeclip brushes the tire, look for another bicycle.

If you are buying a bicycle for touring or light recreational riding you should make sure that there is adequate clearance between the toeclip and the tire for mounting mudguards.

There is much more to know about the bicycle frame, but it is beyond the scope of this article. Angles of the seat tube and head tube, rake and trail of the fork, butted or straight-gauge tubing, lugged or welded construction — all affect the performance of the finished bicycle. If you are interested in complete details, an excellent resource is The Bike Stop, a booklet by shop owner and bicycle frame builder Sam Braxton. The book is available through Bikecentennial, a nonprofit service organization for touring cyclists, at P.O. Box 8308-P, Missoula, MT 59807.

One more general point about the frame. Whether you are a man or a woman you should buy a diamond frame, commonly known as a "men's frame." The diamond frame is inherently stronger than any other frame design and, thanks to special thin-walled tubing, is also lighter than any other frame design. Women who feel they wouldn't be comfortable on a diamond frame should try the mixte frame, a modified diamond frame with a downward sloping top tube.

For $200-$250, most bike shops are able to offer you a bicycle that comes with wheels with aluminum rims. Many people are surprised to learn that aluminum alloys are the kings of metal preferred by cyclists over steel for every application except the frameset. After all, isn't steel much stronger, especially for rims?

Not really. A properly constructed aluminum wheel is at least as strong as a steel wheel, and the aluminum wheel has some important advantages. It is considerably lighter than its steel counterpart, often as much as a pound per rim. As this is rotating weight, weight which you must put in motion, the two pound difference is much more noticeable in the wheels than it would be in the frame. The bike with steel rims will be much less lively.

The aluminum rim also offers some other important advantages over the steel rim. It is more resistant to damage from potholes, it is easier to keep true, and it offers better wet weather stopping power. Even if you consider yourself an occasional cyclist, aluminum rims should be listed as a necessity.

Tire size is also an important consideration. For the tourist, durability and ease of repair are the main considerations. The standard touring tire is the 27 x 1¼" tire, which offers durability, a decent level of rolling resistance, ease of repair in case of a flat, and an attractively low replacement price.

Tires designated as 700C are becoming increasingly popular. (In fact, if you tour in Europe, you will find that this is the only tire that is widely available.) The 700C tire and rim came to this country originally as a training wheel for racers, but the heavier versions can be used for recreational riding, though they are not recommended for loaded touring.

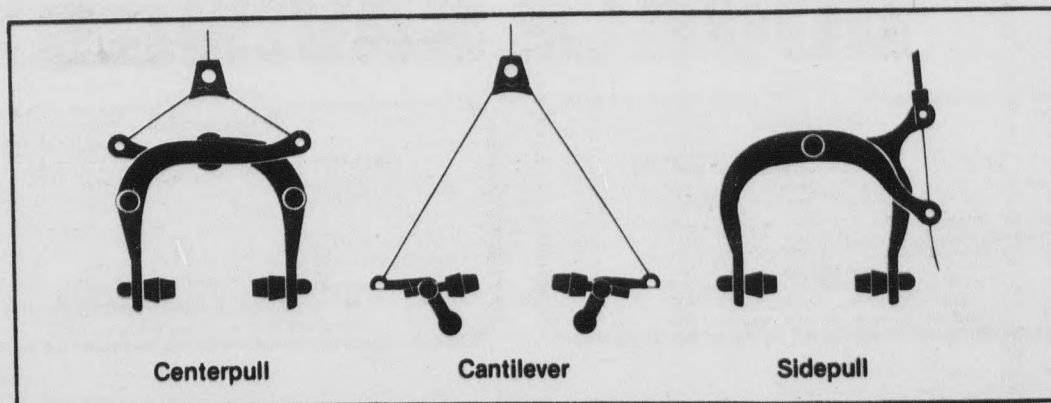

The 700C rims look identical to 27" rims, but they are actually four millimeters smaller in diameter, so the tires are not interchangeable between the two rim sizes. The 700C x 32C width tire is the most durable of the 700C tires. The 700C x 28C can be used for light recreational riding. The 700C x 25C should be left to the racers. Keep in mind that 700C wheels require a different position for your brakes, and may not fit your bicycle.

Even on bicycles in the lower price range you should be able to get wheels with quick release hubs. These hubs incorporate a special clamp which secures the wheel to the frame via a lever. To remove the wheel from the bike, you simply release the lever. This is preferable to wrenching nuts every time you need to change a flat or pack your bicycle in the car.

Gearing has given the modern bicycle rider the mechanical advantage to pedal relatively easily up hills and over long distances. Compromise is the rule when it comes to considering the gearing provided on production (as opposed to custom-built) bicycles. Most sport touring bicycles come with 10 or 12 gears, commonly referred to in gear inches. A high gear has a high number; a lower gear has a smaller number. On most production bicycles the low gear is typically 40 inches, with a high gear of 100 inches or more.

Next Week

This series will continue next week with more hints on selecting the correct bicycle. This series is prepared by Bikecentennial, a non-profit service organization.

Little did these eighth grade sprinters know, but they were off on the 90-yard dash. Officials at the 15th annual Optimist Junior High Invitational track meet marked off only 90 yards at Upland High School's Highlander Stadium.

Pioneer captures annual track meet

Upland's Pioneer Junior High School dominated action last Saturday at the Ontario-Upland Junior High School Track Meet held at Upland High School.

Pioneer piled up 238 points for the day, easily outdistancing second-place Alta Loma of Rancho Cucamonga with 85 points. De Anza of Ontario was third in the competition with 66 points.

Optimist Club president Roy Throop presented trophies to the top three schools at Highlander Stadium. Pioneer led in seventh and eighth grade girls competition as well as seventh grade boys. Chino Magnolia, making its first appearance in the 10-school meet, claimed honors in the eighth grade boys action.

Club members made more than 200 individual ribbons which were passed out to the first five finishers in each event.

In addition to the winning schools, other junior highs which participated in the 15th annual meet included Cucamonga, Imperial, Ontario Christian, Serrano, Upland and Vina Danks.

Hope hopeful of shuffle to Buffalo

By Ron Witt

You wouldn't want to run a marathon in Buffalo, N.Y., a good portion of the year. The city's location on the eastern shore of Lake Erie makes it one of the snowiest cities in the world during the winter.

But the eye-high snowbanks should be long gone by May 26 when the elite of the United States marathoners gather there for the Olympic Trials, and West Valleyite Joel Hope wants to be in the group vying for an Olympic berth.

Hope, the 26-year-old former Alta Loma High School and Chaffey College standout who now makes his home in Montclair, is gearing himself for the trials by competing in shorter races.

Last Sunday, he was to compete in the Sun Run 10K at Claremont, an event he had dominated the previous two years. In recent action, he won the Pigeon Pass Marathon at Loma Linda and the Challenge of the Foothills 10K in Alta Loma.

'I feel like I have a good chance. I don't have the pressure on me to do well as much as some of the other name runners.'

Joel Hope

He tried to run in the Los Angeles Marathon but pulled up short after just three miles with leg problems.

Those woes in the past, Hope pronounces himself "physically and psychologically ready to go" for his Olympic bid. His best time remains the 2:16:11 he ran in the 1983 Boston Marathon, which earned him 33rd in the field.

"I feel like I have a good chance," says Hope. "I don't have the pressure on me to do well as much as some of the other name runners."

He does have pressure of another sort, however — financial. Minus any sponsoring company backing him, Hope needs to come up with an estimated $550 for air fare to Buffalo.

Those wishing to donate may do so by writing to Hope in care of the Liberty Christian Center, P.O. Box 1831, Ontario, CA 91762. Hope stresses he is not an employee of the church.

Hope expects to be running with 250-400 runners as the competitors vie for three Olympic berths (plus an alternate spot).

Hearing Loss Is Not A Sign Of Old Age

(Ontario)-Free electronic hearing tests will be given at the Beltone Hearing Aid Center Office at 608 N. Euclid, Ontario on Monday & Tuesday from 9:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Anyone who has trouble hearing is welcome to have the test. Many people with hearing problems don't need hearing aids. But only a modern hearing test like the one now being offered by Beltone can really tell for sure. Licensed Hearing aid Dispensers will conduct the tests.

Everyone should have a hearing test at least once a year if there is any trouble at all hearing clearly. Even people now wearing a hearing aid or those who have been told nothing could be done for them should have a hearing test to see if modern methods of hearing amplification can help them hear better. Hearing aids will be available for purchase.

Hearing is a family matter so please bring your husband or wife with you if possible

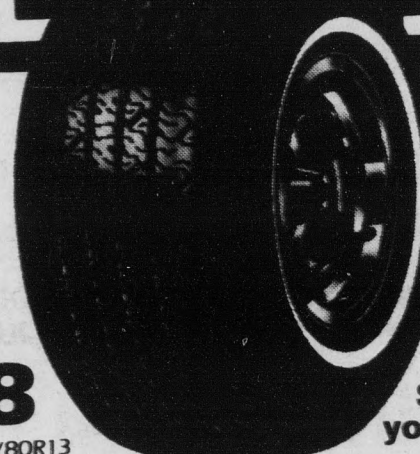

The free hearing tests will be given Monday and Tuesday from 9:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., 608 N. Euclid, Ontario. To avoid waiting call 984-2248 for an appointment. If you can't get there on Monday or Tuesday, call to arrange for an appointment at another time. In-home testing is also available.

Parents form to organize Rebound Club

By Dennis Arp

Losing can be a great source of motivation. Just ask Garry McMahon.

As a fan and booster of Upland High School basketball, McMahon has seen many a Highlander game over the last few years. He has also seen many a loss. Therein lies the motivation for the Upland Rebound Club, a group of parents organized to provide support for youth basketball in the city.

"I guess we got tired of watching Glendora win and Upland lose," said McMahon, who is president of the organization. "A number of parents, mainly of high school kids, got tired of not having a program that taught the kids the basics of basketball."

"When the kids got to high school, the coaches were having to teach the basics instead of forming a team."

McMahon has had sons on each of the last two Upland High School varsity teams. Ronn, now a freshman at Ricks College in Rexburg, Idaho, played point guard on a losing team two years ago. Jamie, a UHS sophomore, played the same position on this year's 3-17 squad.

"We (the parents) started talking during last season," McMahon said. "We've talked to the coaches, and coach (Paul) Trautwein has been helpful in providing the gym."

The club has organized a pair of programs for the first year of its existence. First, one night a week has been set aside for "open gym" play at Upland High School.

The open gym night is scheduled Wednesday from 7 to 9:30 p.m. On each Wednesday until the end of the school year, the gym will be open to anyone for pick-up games.

The club is also sponsoring a summer instructional league for boys and girls in grades 7 to 12. A sign-up session will be held Saturday from 8 a.m. to noon at the Magnolia Recreation Center, 651 W. 15th St. in Upland.

League play begins June 1 and runs through July 31. Cost of registration in the Upland Recreation Department co-sponsored league is $25.

Players will be assigned to teams according to age and skill with stipulations on equal playing time also being enforced.

Club officials are hoping for 150 participants to be placed on 15 teams. If enough girls sign up, separate leagues will be organized.

Anyone interested in playing or coaching can get more information on the league by calling the Upland Recreation Department at 985-0994.

League games will be played in the UHS gym, a facility Trautwein said should get more use by non-high school players.

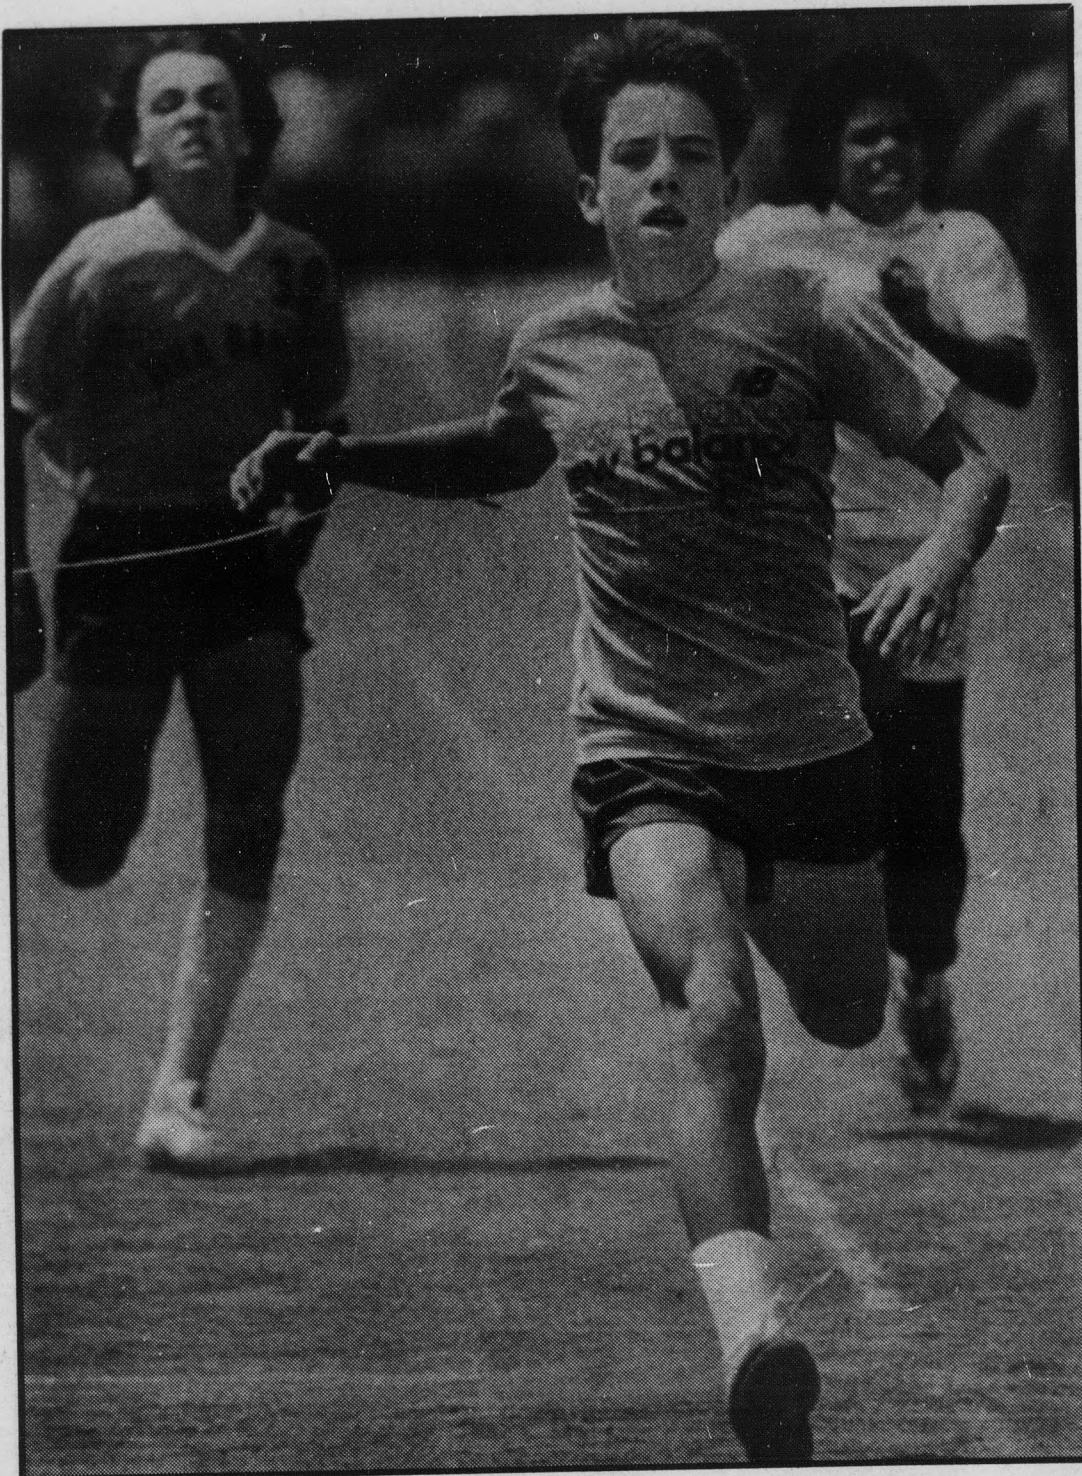

"We're trying to make inside basketball available to the community," the coach said. "It's not so much that the kids haven't been taught the fundamentals of basketball, it's more that they haven't had a chance to learn."

Trautwein is anxious to see them get the chance. But he sees more than just a few extra high school wins coming from the club's efforts.

"We don't figure to develop any pros, but the league and open gym may help give everyone a better understanding of basketball fundamentals," Trautwein said. "Maybe the attendance at games will pick up. I think (high school) attendance has been down even for teams that have been winning."

McMahon's record of attendance has remained steady, even though Upland hasn't been one of those winning teams. He's hoping the losses will be less frequent in the future.

"They don't have to be champions," McMahon said of the Highlanders. "But we want an equal opportunity to see them win."

Baldy ski lifts approved

Construction of two additional ski lifts has been approved for the Mt. Baldy Ski Resort area located in the Angeles National Forest in a decision notice handed down by Zane Smith, Regional Forester, Pacific Southwest Region.

The two additional lifts are to be constructed in the existing ski resort area already under special use permit from the Forest Service. Approval of the new lifts was contingent on five site-specific studies begun in 1979. The recently completed studies show that any environmental impacts associated with the additional lifts can be mitigated. The resort is partially located on the San Bernardino National Forest.

Copies of the decision notice are available for review at the Angeles National Forest Supervisor's Office, 150 S. Los Robles Avenue, Pasadena, and the San Bernardino National Forest Supervisor's Office, 144 N. Mountain View Avenue, San Bernardino.
